ARMY LOYALTY IS ATTACKED

Effort to Undermine It Made by Revolutionists

SOME PROGRESS ALREADY

In This Direction—Russia Suppressing Anti-Jewish Disorders—Official Figures Indicate Better Economic Conditions.

St. Petersburg, June 28.—Tuesday's session of the lower House of Parliament, was opened devoted to the revolutionists' propaganda for undermining the loyalty of the troops. A score of speeches couched in ardent revolutionary tones were delivered, with the direct object of their dissemination among the soldiers. The authorities, who are about to confiscate papers containing telegraphic accounts of the ferment among the soldiery, are unable to prevent the publication of parliamentary speeches and those delivered Tuesday were yesterday printed in every radical paper in the empire and so find their way into every barracks, camp and outpost. The rostrum was abandoned almost entirely to Cossack representatives. The conservative Cossacks did their best to counteract the addresses of their revolutionary confreres. The latter were freely pelted on both sides regarding the sentiments of the Cossack soldiers and their devotion to duty in spite of the utmost efforts of Prince Paul Dolgoroukoff, who occupied the chair in the absence of President Mouroussoff. A rumor was circulated in the corridors that the latter had been sentenced to Petrovoff for consultation with Emperor Nicholas with regard to a new cabinet, but confirmation of this report is not obtainable.

FOUR WILL DIE.

Punishment of Natives Who Attacked British Officers in Egypt.

Cairo, Egypt, June 28.—The trial of the natives concerned in the attack of June 13 on the party of five British officers had been postponed to Petrovoff for consultation with Emperor Nicholas with regard to a new cabinet, but confirmation of this report is not obtainable.

The executions and the hangings will occur at Denshawal. All the men sentenced to death will be hanged by turns on gallows in the presence of the villagers.

VALUE OF RAPE.

Sown in July For Late Sheep Feeding—Thrives in the North.

Not all sheep raisers appreciate the immense value of rape. This plant thrives especially well in northern latitudes and is one of the most valuable forage crops to be grown in New England. The soil best adapted is a rich one, well supplied with humus and vegetable matter. The plant does especially well on muck or old pasture lands. Lighter soils are inclined to give a dwarfed plant and rather unsatisfactory crop. Rich clay loams give excellent results. It is important that the ground be put in good tilth before planting.

For the very early crop rape should be sown as early in spring as the ground can be worked, but for fall pasturing July 1 is a good date to put in the seed. The crop matures for feeding in about two months from time of planting. The work of the experiment stations indicates that rather better results may be expected when the seed is sown in drills thirty inches apart at the rate of two pounds to the acre.

Rape is ideal feed for sheep and hogs, and even dairy cows do fairly well on it. Conservative estimates have it that an acre of rape will furnish about two months' pasture for twenty lambs which are being fed a small grain ration in addition. Sheep should be observed closely when first turned into rape or blighting may occur. Some of the more forward of our New England farmers are thoroughly conversant with the advantages offered by rape as a forage crop. The brief remarks of a Massachusetts farmer given herewith are of interest:

"I have never fed sheep in summer except on grass, as I have the best of natural pastures. However, while in Ontario last fall I saw hundreds of sheep feeding on rape, which was highly recommended by breeders as a crop either for selling or for feeding off. The seed is sown after wheat or oats or even corn at the last mowing. Care is required in getting sheep accustomed to it, as they are liable to scours if fed too heavily at first. A. W. Smith, winner of the lion's share of prizes in the Leicester classes at St. Louis and Portland exhibitions, told me that cabbages are the shiest and best green fall feed for show sheep and that he always provides a supply for his show sheep at no matter what cost."—New England Homestead.

Central Park, New York, was the first municipal park in the world.

The Coliseum. The Coliseum of Rome was built to accommodate 100,000 spectators. It was 120 feet high and covered one and a half acres of land.

Are You Wretched in Bad Weather?

Keeping the Kidneys Well Has Kept Many Barre People Well.

Many Barre people find that bad weather brings on a dull pain in the back, or rheumatic aching, neuralgia, nervousness, irritability and weakness. If, when you get wet or take cold, it "settles on the kidneys," and there is a shivery, chilly sensation in the back, it shows kidney weakness which is often the beginning of disease. Doan's Kidney Pills should be used persistently until the chilly feeling is gone, and the flow of urine is natural. Doan's Kidney Pills have saved Barre people much suffering.

W. W. McAuley of 35 Seminary St., Barre, Vt., says: "I took all kinds of medicine said to be good for kidney trouble but without getting any noticeable relief. The pain in my left kidney was severe and I could not stoop to pick up anything from the floor without having sharp shooting pains in the small of my back. I was very restless nights and awoke mornings feeling tired and sore all over. Damp weather always made me feel worse and I finally became so bad I could not walk a short distance. It was then that I began using Doan's Kidney Pills sold by E. A. Drown, the druggist, and they helped me from the first, relieving the pain in my back and helping me in every way. I used several boxes and can honestly say that I never found a medicine to help me like Doan's Kidney Pills did. I have told many people what they did for me and know of several who have used them on my recommendation with satisfactory results." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. For Miltum Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

STACKING WHEAT.

An Ohio Man Tells How to Do a Good Job—Presents the Trick.

Here every one stacks wheat within a week or ten days after cutting. It saves the grain in case of wet weather, allows the owner to thrash just when he pleases and renders him independent of some poor, cheap rig of a thrasher that comes around knocking out a crop here and there, writes an Ohioan to Farm and Ranch.

I have been stacking wheat more than thirty years and never had a stack to take water yet. We prefer the long rack to the round stack and make our racks eighteen to twenty feet long and nine to twelve feet wide. If you have no old rails or plank for a bottom begin by setting up a long shock, widening and lengthening until the sheaves lie nearly flat, heads up. Use a short handled fork to place the sheaves and stand up. Never get down on your knees, but stand straight up, directing the pitcher to throw the sheaves toward the center of the stack and in front of you, so you can easily reach them.

Keep the stack fairly level until you get as high as a man's head; then keep the middle full and solid, placing the two outside courses rather loosely. In fact, it is best to keep the middle solid from the very start, and remember that you are not to get any farther out than the heads of the second course from the outside, as you may slip your stack. An expert stacker can work farther out than a beginner, but if you keep well in you can build just as good a stack and be in no danger of slipping the stack, which is a rather serious matter. Draw in your stack slowly the first few rounds, and then you will naturally draw in faster from the fact that your stack gets smaller and your middle higher.

Any man who can put on a good load of grain can build a good stack if he will remember to keep his middle full and solid and keep off the outside courses. One of my sons was a good stacker at nineteen years of age and at twenty put 325 shocks into stack in twelve hours with only one team hauling. Those 325 shocks made 430 bushels of wheat, so it will be seen that stacking is not such a big job after all.

POPULAR GARDENING

Succession is the secret of a satisfactory garden.

It is a mistake to think vegetables cannot be had in abundance in summer. But the right efforts must be employed for satisfactory results. The earth must be perfect before a seed is sown or a plant set, then cover the surface with plants and a crop will be secured.

Why not set some celery plants? There's no mystery about growing celery, though it requires care and suitable soil, which should be deep, rich and moist.

In some tests of tomato training the greatest average weight of individual fruit as well as the greatest weight per plant was given by the three stem system where the leader was headed in.

Cabbage plants should be set out for the late crop.

Keep the lima beans well hoed and start them on the pole.

Sow or transplant beets for winter use.
